

CLUBMAN LYNDE KILLED UNDER HIS OWN AUTOMOBILE

Drove Car Recklessly Despite Inefficiency and Chauffeur's Warning.

MACHINE TURNED OVER.

Had Tried to Make Sharp Turn to Avoid a Collision, and Wet Road Made It Skid.

Charles W. Lynde, son of the late Charles W. Lynde, a millionaire lawyer of Brooklyn, was instantly killed last evening when his automobile in which he was riding with a woman, failed to be his housekeeper, and the chauffeur, struck the curb on the South County road near Islip, Long Island, and, upsetting, pinned Mr. Lynde beneath its ponderous weight. His death was distressing. The weight of the automobile crushed the head of the wealthy clubman, almost severing it above the eyes.

Mr. Lynde, his housekeeper, Miss Irene Chandler, and his chauffeur, Earl Holme, were enjoying a spin on the road, Mr. Lynde talking and laughing with his housekeeper in an unusually boisterous manner. It is related that they stopped at several roadhouses during the trip.

Mr. Lynde, who was driving, told himself, relegating the chauffeur to the rear seat. It is stated that at that time Mr. Lynde admittedly was driving at a speed which would have caused him to stop in the direction of so high-powered a car.

Just west of Islip, going at a dangerous speed, Mr. Lynde tried to pass another car. He struck a curb or drain by the side of the road and lost control of the car. It lurched forward, throwing the chauffeur and Miss Chandler out. Lynde, because of his hold on the steering wheel, kept his seat. The car, continuing after the first shock, struck a stone fence, rebounded. Throwing Mr. Lynde to the road and then the huge machine careened and fell on him, crushing his head in just above the eyes. Dr. H. B. Delatour, of Brooklyn, in front of whose country home, the accident occurred, said he died instantly.

Lynde was forty-seven years old. While an undergraduate at Princeton College, in 1881, he married Mary Yards Wright, a stenographer. The elder Lynde cut off the son's allowance, and he and his bride had a hard struggle. Lynde finally left his wife, went West and enlisted in the United States Cavalry. Then he became a major before the mast. Finally he started a sheep farm in Australia and made about $60,000. He sold out and returned to this country, only to learn that his father had left him $60,000 and that his wife had divorced him. The courts ordered Lynde to pay her $60,000 at 9% a week.

Lynde, who had married an English widow, fought the alimony suit into the United States Supreme Court, and losing, sold his $60,000 at Blue Point for $7,000 and went to England in 1892 to live. He remained there with his wife a couple of years and then returned to Patchogue, accompanied by the housekeeper, who was with him yesterday.

The year after he had excommunicated himself, his mother, Mrs. August Lynde, was supposed to have committed suicide by jumping from a ferryboat in the North River. She left to a younger son, Rollin H. Lynde, all her property except three oil paintings on a marble statue of the Greek Slave which she gave to Charles W. Lynde.

HELD IN POSSIBLE DOUBLE MURDER

One Killed in Boarding-House Fight and One May Die—Three Arrested.

Jack Bernak, his son Paul and his son-in-law, John Matuszak, are in the Newark jail to-day, charged with being implicated in the murder of Michael Glusowski, twenty-six years old, and the fatal stabbing of his brother Paul, who is in the hospital at the point of death.

The murder and stabbing occurred during a row in the basement house at No. 159 Adams street, Newark.

The following day an alleged insult and attack made on Mrs. Henrietta Alasky, who lived in the tenement and who had no boarders, the Olsowski brothers. She said that the Bernaks insulted her last night and that to protect herself she hit one of them with a can. She told the police that Bernak, his son and son-in-law then set upon her, and her boarders came to her aid. The police said that when the Bernaks whipped out a long knife and plunged the blade of the weapon through the heart. A second drive of the sharp blade went under the shoulder blade and he fell.

Then the police came and the arrests were made.
